Who we are

We are CCLG: The Children & Young People's Cancer Association, a charity dedicated to creating a brighter future for children and young people with cancer. Powered by expertise, we unite the children and young people's cancer community, driving collective action and progress.

Research is the key to better treatments, improved care, and potential cures. We fund and lead world-class research, fuelling groundbreaking work led by brilliant minds. Collaboration is at the heart of our approach—bringing together the right people and organisations to drive progress and deliver real impact.

We provide trusted information and guidance for children and young people with cancer, their families, and everyone supporting them. Our expertise helps them navigate the challenges of cancer and its impact, offering reassurance and clarity when it's needed most.

Through our professional membership, we bring together the brightest minds in children and young people's cancer, creating a national network that drives progress. Together, we shape better treatment and care—developing guidelines, sharing knowledge, offering expert advice, leading pioneering research, and creating essential resources and education for professionals. Our collective expertise sets the standard, advocating for excellence at every level—local, national, and global.

Every year, over 4,000 children and young people aged 0-25 are diagnosed with cancer

There are more than 200 different types of cancer which affect children and young people

Around 2 in 10 children and young people in UK will not survive for 5 years or more after cancer

Cancer is the most common cause of death from disease in young people

Children's cancers can be different from adult cancers and respond differently to treatment

We don't know what causes most cancers in children and young people

Research is vital to creating better, kinder treatments and cures
